Aboriginal Legal Services Langley - Cases of Tort law are legal cases that handle civil wrongs. If you have suffered harm or injury as a consequence of somebody else's intentional wrongdoing or negligence, you may be eligible to receive compensation in a tort law case.

Negligence causing medical malpractice, personal injury and car accidents is the most common type of tort law case. Our tort law lawyers can help you determine who charges must be laid against and who is responsible for your damages. Even parties indirectly involved with an action that caused you harm may be held responsible for damages. Like for example, the delivery truck driver can be held responsible for harming you in an accident, but so may the employer who hired the driver. Several parties can, in some situations, be charged with negligence for the harm which you suffer.

Our tort law lawyers are skilled and extremely knowledgeable in tort law cases. Get in touch with us for an evaluation if you have been adversely affected by a civil wrong. We will help you to understand your legal alternatives and guide you through all parts of the tort law case.
